

SCOPE

Scholars for Community Outreach, Partnership and Engagement

An initiative of the Center for Community-Based Partnerships

Join SCOPE and move from student to scholar by considering how community-focused expertise can enrich your educational experience.

Events are free and open to all UA students!

JANUARY 23

Introduction to SCOPE and a presentation by Ed Shirley, Senior Research Compliance Specialist with the UA Office of Research Compliance on how to secure Institutional Review Board approval for research projects.

FEBRUARY 6

Dr. Hilary Green, Assistant Professor, Gender and Race Studies and author of "Educational Reconstruction: African American Schools in the Urban South, 1865–1890" will discuss the significance of her methodology for community-based research. Dr. Green is also an active member of the Tuscaloosa Civil Rights Task Force. (Offered in conjunction with African American History Month.)

FEBRUARY 20

CCBP Director of Community Development Christopher H. Spencer, M.S.C.E. and Educational Psychology, PhD student will discuss participatory action research and its fit with community engagement.

(Offered in conjunction with African American History Month.)

MARCH 6

Hear about securing grant funding to support community-based collaboration from Dr. James McLean, Executive Director of the Center for Community-Based Partnerships.

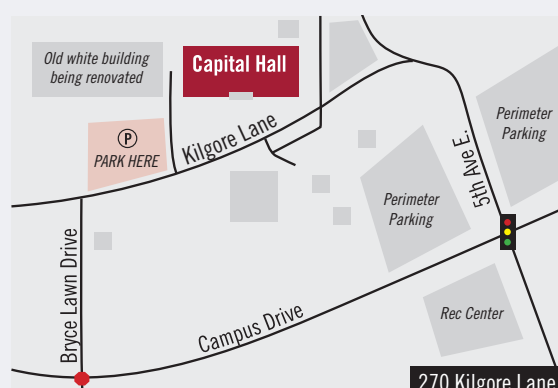

APRIL 3

Dr. Edward Mullins, Director of Research and Communication for the Center for Community-Based Partnerships and Krystal Dozier, assistant to the editor for the Journal of Community Engagement and Scholarship (JCES) will discuss how to present your work for journals and conferences.

APRIL 17

Election of officers and review community-based projects in anticipation of the 18th Annual Conference of the Engagement Scholarship Consortium.

For more information, contact Dr. Tonyia Tidline at ttidline@ua.edu.

JOIN US!

SCOPE Meetings will be held at 6 PM in the Training Room at Capital Hall, located on the Bryce Campus.

Division of Community Affairs
Center for Community-Based Partnerships